COMMENCEMENT CEREMONY

Commencement exercises today at Northern Kentucky University give special attention to the pageantry of the ceremony. The counterpart of this pageantry is enacted each year on campuses all over the world. It is the solemn climax and recognition of the graduates' years of study and preparation for increased responsibility.

History of Academic Costume

The history of academic dress reaches far back into the early days of the oldest universities. A statute of 1321 required that all "Doctors, Licentiates, and Bachelors" of the University of Coimbra wear gowns. In England, in the second half of the fourteenth century, the statutes of certain colleges forbade "excess in apparel" and prescribed the wearing of a long gown. It is still unknown whether academic dress finds its source chiefly in ecclesiastical or in civilian dress. Gowns may have been counted necessary for warmth in the unheated buildings frequented by medieval scholars. Hoods seem to have served to cover the tonsured head until they were superseded by skull caps. These were themselves displaced by a headdress somewhat like those now recognized as "academic." Both Cambridge and Oxford have made academic dress a matter of university control to the extent of minor details and have repeatedly issued revised regulations governing it. In seventeenth-century Oxford it was prescribed that any tailor who departed from the authorized design "by a nail's breath" in the making of any article of collegiate costume was to be punished by the vice-chancellor of the university.

European institutions continue to show a great diversity in their specifications of academic dress, while American colleges and universities have adopted, through the Intercollegiate Bureau of Academic Costume and the American Council of Education, a standard code of dress for academic ceremony. Created in 1902, the Intercollegiate Bureau of Academic Costume serves as a source of information and guidance in such matters and, through occasional review by the American Council of Education, these standards have been adopted and followed by hundreds of colleges and universities in the United States.

For all academic purposes, including trimmings of doctor's gowns, edgings of hoods, and tassels of caps, the colors associated with the different subjects are as follows:

Academic Attire

Today, all candidates for degrees and those who hold degrees, including college officials, faculty, and visiting dignitaries, are attired in traditional cap and gown. The formal color for most caps and gowns is black. However, holders of different degrees wear distinctive tassels on their caps (called mortarboards). Hoods of various hues drape down the back of the gowns. Recipients of the associate degree at Northern Kentucky University wear gray gowns and gray tassels; recipients of the bachelor's degree wear black gowns and black tassels; recipients of the degree of Master of Arts in Education wear black gowns and light blue tassels; recipients of the degree of Master of Business Administration wear black gowns and drab tassels; and recipients of the degree of Juris Doctor wear black gowns and purple tassels.

Those wearing academic costumes wear caps in the academic processions and throughout the ceremony. Men may remove their caps during prayer or at other specified times. Numerous institutions have adopted the practice of requiring candidates for degrees to wear the tassel on the right front side before degrees are conferred and to shift it to the left at the moment the degrees are awarded to them.

Members of the University governing body are entitled to wear doctoral gowns. The Regents regalia is a gold gown with three black chevrons and trim and an eight-sided tam with gold tassel. This attire is distinctive of the Board of Regents of Northern Kentucky University.

Grand Marshal

The Grand Marshal is a distinguished member of the University community elected to represent the faculty. Lynn Langmeyer currently holds this honor.

Student Marshals

The students in gold gowns are Student Marshals. They have been selected on the basis of outstanding records of scholastic achievement.

Outstanding Professor Award

The Outstanding Professor Award is given annually to a full-time faculty member who has an outstanding record of achievement in the teaching profession. In addition to the public recognition that comes with the award, the faculty member receives a one-thousand dollar honorarium from the Northern Kentucky University Foundation and has his or her name placed on a plaque that is permanently displayed at the University. This award was given for the first time during the Ninth Annual Commencement.
