

Two Cinquains

by Jane Stuart

Night Wind

Sifting
golden starlight
through a cache of silver moonbeams, softly falling, softly dancing

Holly

Clusters
of red berries
stuck under snowy leaves harden like knots on the holly's cold stem